

True-See S. Allah

True-See, a Boston native, is currently the Director of Reentry at the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security. He has previously held the position of Director of Outreach and Reentry for UTEC Inc. and Assistant Deputy Superintendent at the Suffolk County Sheriff's Dept.

True-See is well respected and versed within the field of re-entry, combining his life experience and professional expertise to share insight with audiences across the Commonwealth. His panelist credits include conferences hosted by Safe House, Harvard Law School/Criminal Justice Institute, MassINC, the International Community Corrections Association, and the Massachusetts Association of Minority Law Enforcement Officers (MAMLEO). Having spoken on national platforms hosted by the U.S. Department of Justice, he was selected to participate in Cease Fire and in the national Value Based Initiative Focus Group. He has also appeared on Urban Update (WHDH-TV, Boston) and National Public Radio (WBUR-Boston).

Cassandra Bensahih

Cassandra is the Senior Organizer and MASC Statewide Coordinator (Massachusetts Against Solitary Confinement Coalition) for the Unitarian Universalist Mass Action. Her work focuses on the End Mass Incarceration and Economic Justice Campaigns. She is also the development coordinator working closely with UU congregation partners. In 2009, she began organizing as a dedicated volunteer at EPOCA and worked to develop her skills as an intern, a member of the Board of Directors, and as apprentice and then rose to the position of Executive Director. Cassandra is a respected leader and frequent speaker on criminal justice reform. She brings her insight as a woman and mother affected by the criminal justice system. The relationships she has built in doing this work to improve the devastating effects the current system has on countless people. She is passionate about fighting for social justice and leadership development.

Kevin Sibley

Kevin Sibley brings over 18 years of experience in human resources, program development and grant funded initiatives specific to the well-being of underserved individuals to his new role as director of the Office of Returning Citizens.

Before joining the Walsh Administration, Sibley worked as a program coordinator for Street Safe Boston, a public safety initiative by The Boston Foundation. He worked to reduce youth violence in a subset of Boston affected by high rates of violent crime. He also previously served as the founding Dean of Students for the Home for Little Wanderers, the oldest not-for-profit organization in the country. He implemented accountability measures and monitored programs and services for behaviorally and emotionally challenged students.

Sibley serves his community as a mentor and entrepreneur. He is currently the Boston area director for the Kappa League. Sibley served in the United States Army Ordnance Division from 1990 to 1997. He holds a Masters in Business Management from Cambridge College and is an Alumnus of the University of Massachusetts. He currently resides in Dorchester.